Residents' Rights

Georgia law provides for the rights of residents concerning admission, transfer, discharge and care in the facility, and provides remedies for residents when those rights have been violated. These rights include:

- the right to enjoy one's own privacy (for example, the resident can close doors and draw curtains);
- the right to respect privacy in provision of personal services;
- the right to practice religious beliefs, as well as the right to abstain from religious beliefs or practices;
- the right to refuse medical/dental treatment;
- the right to participate in one's care plan;
- the right to form a resident council
- the right to interact with members of the community and to participate fully in the life of the community.
